

MASTER'S DEGREE PROGRAMS

45.04.01 Russian Language

Successful completion of the program prepares graduates to be highly qualified specialists in the sphere of Russian Philology who are able to conduct linguistic research applying modern methods of extracting, processing and collecting scientific information.

The program content fields incorporate the following range of subject disciplines:

- Russian Philology
- Functional Grammar of Contemporary Russian
- Semantics of the Russian Language
- Stylistics of the Russian Language
- Linguistic Personology
- Sociolinguistics
- Legal Linguistics
- Political Linguistics
- Russian Language in the Gender Aspect
- Russian Onomastics
- Modern Urban Narrative
- Master's Thesis

45.04.02 Russian Literature

The program focuses on a number of new aspects in the Russian Literature Studies. The prime aim of the program is to trace the interaction of different literary traditions with the political and ideological agenda of the 20-21 centuries, nation-building projects and strategies to form new territorial identities.

The program content fields incorporate the following range of subject disciplines:

- History and Mythopoetics of the Russian Traditionalistic Prose
- Philology in the Context of Modern Humanities
- Problem of National Identity in Contemporary Russian Literature
- Ideology and Poetics of the 'Prison Camp' Prose
- History and Theory of Mass Culture
- Russian 'Military' Prose of 1950-2000
- Feminism in Russian Literature
- Siberian Text in the National Cultural Space
- Master's Thesis

Application deadline:	30 July 2017
Start date:	1 September 2017
Duration:	2 years
Credits:	120
Language:	Russian

